About the Cover: It was in 1917 that the first Athenian was issued. At that time Sherman was named the "Little Athens" of North Texas. The community was widely known for its cultural, architectural, and educational achievements and was so named "Little Athens" because it was in the Grecian city of Athens that art, culture, and education first started. For this reason, the first volume of our yearbook was titled the ATHENIAN. It has since remained the same for the past sixty-four volumes.

Sherman High School is an endless corridor of new faces, not-so-new faces, and new ideas slowly absorbed by time and tradition; they blend together to create the Sherman High experience.

Looking at yesterday

We learn to enjoy the thrill of victory and accept the agony of defeat while we grow as rapidly as the city around us. Academics fill our weekdays, while sleep and excitement fill our weekends.

We learn to accept more responsibility for ourselves and at the same time prepare for life ahead of us. No one ever said it would be easy, but once it's over we can look back at the fond memories of our Sherman High experience.

Trends spread

It seems funny how fashion trends spread. Right now, the obvious "in" fad seems to be western. It all started because of the movie "Urban Cowboy" and a little Houston Club called "Gilley's." Although the cowboy boots and hats have always been "in," they are more preppy and certainly more expensive than they used to be.

Western isn't the only fashion trend. Over the past few years, students have increased the wearing of T-shirt designs, particularly concert T-shirts and "I rode the bull at Gilley's" T-shirts.

The young ladies have gone back to plaid skirts, blazers and penny loafers or classic slip on shoes. Even the football team has started dressing up for pep rallies. Blue jeans have always been and always will be "in," but nowadays it's Willie Nelson or J.R. on the back pocket.

Fun and creativity

Several dress days were designed this year to create a time for fun and creativity. The first was 50's Day which was sponsored by Publications. Winning cash prizes for the coolest costumes were Cooper McElhannon, Helene Softly and Julie Adams.

Many other dress days were sponsored by the student council on Homecoming Week. The first of these, Jersey Day, participants wore their favorite football jerseys. The second, Overall Day, signified that the Cats are "best overall." On Hex Day, students wore black and red to "hex" the opposing team. The favorite of the week was Western Day, in which guys and gals got the "Urban Cowboy" fever and slapped on their favorite duds.

All of the special dress days were successful and helped to arouse the much-needed student participation.

1. Kelly Kramer, Sharon Vrla, Melissa Issacs, and Robin Griffin wear their favorite jerseys. 2. Angela Stewart, Lisa Minor, Sherri Patton, Margaret Moore, and Jane Arnold wait patiently for the Western Day "judging." 3. Miss Joquita and Miss Beverly Gregory act like 50's Day schoolgirls. 4. Time to relax

No sooner does the 3 p.m. bell ring than students are rushing home to their favorite pastime activities. Everyone has something to occupy their free time, whether it's watching television or sitting in a movie theatre munching on popcorn.

Some students leave school and get ready for part time jobs while others spend their time looking for jobs. There are any number of activities to occupy students' free time including eating, shopping, going to favorite "hangouts," doing homework, dating and (quite often overlooked) . . . sleeping.

It seems apparent that most students would rather have a full 24 hours worth of free time, but anything before 8 p.m. and after 3 p.m. is appreciated.

Best in the state

Many students complain about school being boring because all you do is work, work, work. They are right about all the work, but school certainly isn't boring. We have one of the best activity programs in the state.

Some common activities are intramurals, assemblies, and pep rallies, which are created to entertain students. Besides these, there have been numerous other activities this year.

To start off with, the Publications Staff held pie eating contests, hula-hoop contests, and a 50's dress day. The staff also dressed up as ghosts the day of yearbook sales. It was all part of their yearbook campaign.

Another memorable activity throughout the year was the buying, selling, and singing of valentines.

One activity not to be forgotten was the night the Bearcats Varsity Basketball team played in Reunion Arena preceding a game by the Dallas Mavericks.

Making ends meet

Sooner or later, usually after graduation, a young person has to get a job and make ends meet for himself. He no longer can sit home and let mom and dad feed and take care of him.

To prepare for the future, many students are working and earning a living now. They are either on the school's job training program or they have a part time job after school. The money they earn is spent on such things as a car, gas, clothes, movies, cosmetics, dinners out, lunch, school activities, and junk food.

Most students either work in a restaurant or a clothing store. Others work in offices, gift shops, or outside doing laborious jobs.

Although getting a job helps you become more responsible while you are in school, it can be very strenuous on an active student and make it tough to get good grades.

Getting there

Almost every student has heard their mom or dad say, "When I was your age I walked 12 miles to school in the rain, snow, sleet and hail." They always say that but then turn around and get their child a set of wheels. These wheels might be anything from a skateboard to a car, but any means of transportation is greatly appreciated. Some of the popular vehicles among today's students include Camaros, Mustangs, Corvettes, Trans-Ams, Z-28's and let's not forget the Pick-Up Truck.

If you're not driving, you're riding any other number of things including the bus. Some students go as far as to . . . (gasp) . . . walk! There hasn't been anyone daring enough to rollerskate to school, but you never know.

Someone once said that a picture is worth a thousand words. The art students at SHS believe this statement and hold it to its worth.

With the help of three skillful instructors, students experiment with painting, charcoals, tempura, ink drawings and many other facets of art. This enables each individual to express his or her creative ability through sketches and drawings. Many of the students pictures are displayed during the year and some are even submitted for printing in the yearbook. Many of the artists who enjoy their work participate further by joining the Art League.

It doesn't take a professional to draw, just someone with a genuine interest and a steady hand. If Art agrees with you, maybe you should agree to Art!

Monkey business isn't the only kind of business that goes on at SHS. The Business Department consists of Typing, Shorthand, General Business, Accounting, Record Keeping, and Business Law. These classes are designed to help students who plan to work in a business related field. They are also beneficial to college-bound students in that they teach them how to manage money. Most of what is taught in these courses can easily be applied to everyday work.

If you someday plan on minding your own business, this might just be the department to consider.

1. Eddie Gonzales works on general business homework. 2. Donna Duncan, student teacher, explains typing assignment to Todd Riley. 3. Chris Taylor works on typing assignment. 4. Carl Jackson fills out a general business form. 5. Johnny Turner asks Mrs. Bernice Johnson to explain the assignment.

Drama

The Drama department has really gotten its act together. Students in the Speech and Drama classes learn to become familiar with public speaking, and perform dramatic monologues and dialogues throughout the school year.

The Speech class is geared toward helping students resolve shyness and learn proper speaking habits.

Drama students become familiar with different styles of acting and read selection from Ancient Greek to Twentieth Century playwrights. They also learn to develop individual technique and improve voice quality.

Anyone can "put on an act," but it takes a dedicated actor to win favor of the audience. Why not get into the act and consider taking Speech or Drama.

"Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was the Children's Theatre production of 1980-81. This children's classic was presented Dec. 6 and was attended by approximately 1,000 area youngsters and some adults.

The week prior to the production, skits from the play were presented at all the elementary schools, much to the delight and enjoyment of the students.

All aspects of the production were geared toward the young audience members. Colorful sets and costumes were just two of the technical areas where special emphasis was placed upon the visual and artistic effect the show would have upon children. The acting styles of the performers were much broader and covered more range of emotions and gestures in order that the attention of the audience members could be obtained and sustained.

The production was financially successful, it broadened the acting experience of the high school students involved and captured the young audience members' hearts and imaginations. "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" was a totally enriching experience.

The cast was as follows: Snow White, Michelle Fincher; The Queen, Mary King; The Witch, Carol McClure; The Dwarfs: Beth Larson, Doc; Lauri Fisk, Happy; Tim Tisdell, Sneezy; Jerry Roberts, Grumpy; Kim Ellis, Bashful; Prussia Dalton, Sleepy; James Oliphant, Dopey; Sir Dandiprat Bombast, Court Chamberlain, Charley Wilson; The Huntsman, Brad Fincher; The Handsome Prince, Crayton Dallas; The Maids to Snow White, Terri Shook, Rosalyn; Kristi Williams, Amelotte; Tonya Caffey, Ermengarde; Denise Pettijohn, Guinivere; Debbie Gearing, Christabel; Jenny Jones, Astolaine; Melinda Lowe, Ursula; Teresa Davis, Lynette; Aide to Sir Dandiprat, Brent Wingfield; Aides to the Handsome Prince, Curtis Wade, Curry Vogelsang; Duke, Scott Meredith; Duchesses, Dedra Dacus, Dawn Panell, Roxanne Welch, Micky Myatt, Debbie Boone, Kris Weightman; The Cats of the Witch, Roxanne Welch, Debbie Boone, Heidi Bowhay, Kris Weightman, Micky Myatt.

1. Mary King consults Carol McClure about her magical powers. 2. Crayton Dallas and Michelle Fincher observe the fate of the evil queen. 3. Drama

"Lu Ann Hampton Laverty Oberlander" was presented in March by the Drama Dept. The play was an excellent representation of what it is like to grow up, live and eventually die in a small West Texas town.

The characters who appeared in the play were both humorous and touching. Lu Ann Hampton, the central character, is 18 years old when the play begins. She has high hopes for herself and her future as she prepares to graduate from high school. She goes steady with Billy Bob Wortman, a local high school boy, and she is a source of concern and tremendous affection for her mother, Claudine. Skip Hampton, is Lu Ann's brother. He has just returned from the Korean war when the play begins in '53. Skip, like Lu Ann, has dreams and ambitions. As the play progresses the audience sees that Lu Ann's and Skip's lives do not take the direction which their dreams implied. Skip develops into a pathetic drinker who is reduced to pumping gas, when he is able, and Lu Ann goes through two marriages and watches her beloved mother fall victim to a disabling stroke. The wit and strength of Lu Ann carries her through the tribulations which beset her and in the end of the play she demonstrates the earthy and humorous qualities which make Texas women unique.

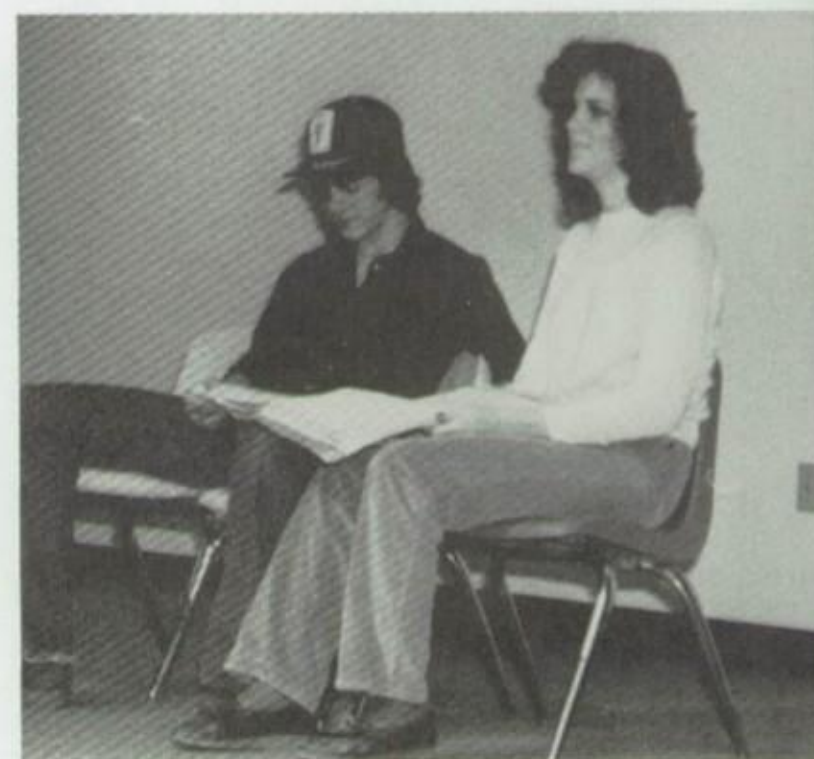

The other characters are townspeople of Bradleyville, the setting of the play. These colorful and imaginative personalities completely round-out and complement the overall effect of small town life in Texas. Charmaine, Lu Ann's daughter, appears in the last Act. She is exactly Lu Ann's age when the play began in 1953. It is now 1973 and Charmaine is a spoiled, brat child. She, like Lu Ann was earlier, is a great source of worry to her mother. Lu Ann is now 38 years old and takes care of her brother and her disabled mother. In one last touching scene, her old high school sweetheart, Billy Bob comes back to Bradleyville for a visit and he and Lu Ann engage in some very endearing and emotional reminiscing. The play covers a total of 20 years from Act I through Act III and the demands put upon the actors were both challenging and rigorous.

The richness and authenticity of this play in regard to Texas and the social impact which Texas has had of late make this play a very timely and interesting work of art.

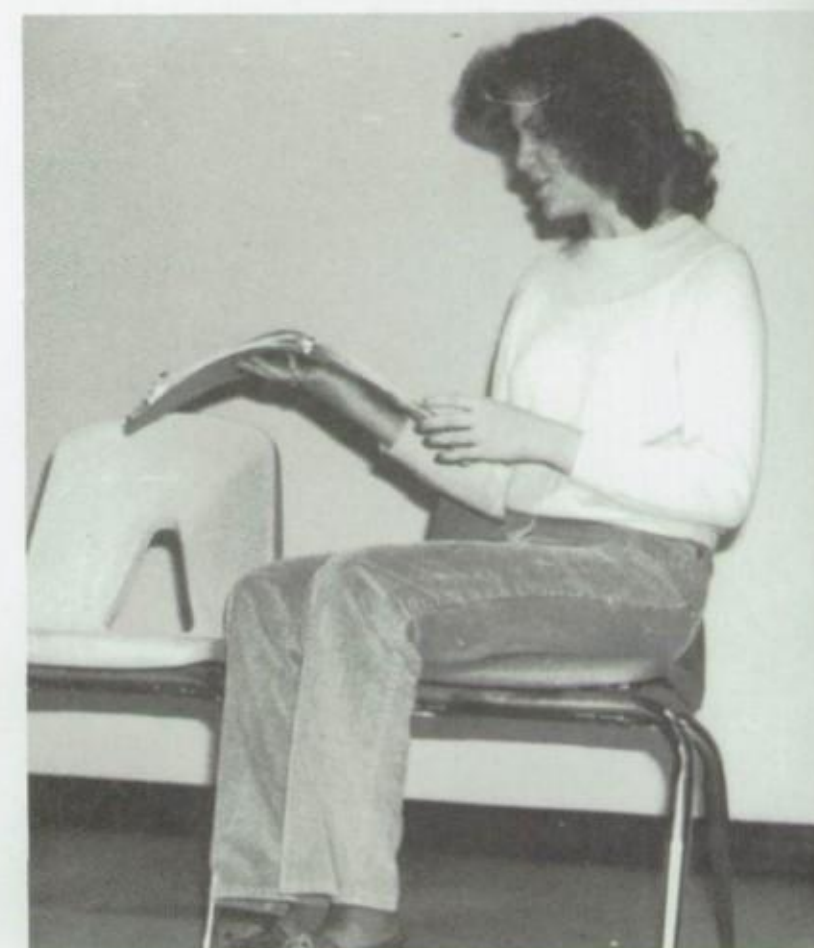

The cast was composed of Michelle Fincher as Claudine, the mother; Chris Adams as Skip, the brother; Terri Shook as Charmaine, Lu Ann's daughter. The townspeople were William Johnson as Milo Crawford, Marvin Sprouse as Rufe Phelps, Crayton Dallas as Olin Potts, Steve Sloan as Red Grover, Wade Riza as Corky Oberlander, Jerry Roberts as Dale Laverty, Rex Grigg as Billy Bob Wortman and Julie Pierce as the one and only, Lu Ann Hampton Laverty Oberlander.

Whether it's defining vocabulary words or reading a novel, the SHS English department presents a challenging year to motivate students. Grammar and composition are covered as well as different forms of literature. Students jump from participles to predicate adjectives and from Great Expectations to Beowulf. Everyone is required to take English, and Seniors are allowed to choose between regular, Advanced Placement, or College English. Though not always the favorite subject, English is very beneficial to a student, and proper speaking habits are carried over into everyday usage. So, why not relax and try to enjoy English? You might even find yourself learning something.

Straight forward journalism is the goal and the cub reporters are working to reach it. "Stop the press" stories are few and far between at SHS but making news readable and interesting is part of the journalist's training.

Math

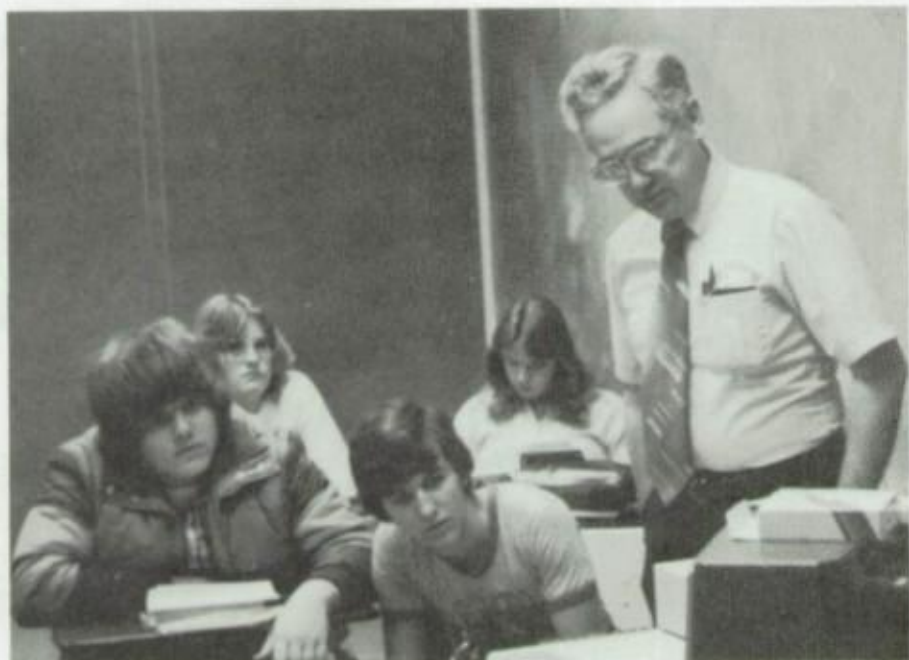

"Excuse me, could you tell me the angle of the flagpole to the north parking lot?" It's a long way from measuring marigolds with inch-worms, but the SHS math department works for a thorough and wide selection of math classes. From Fundamentals to Pre-Calculus, students are encouraged to develop math skills.

A successful math team is open to all students who are eligible and interested. The team competes with other schools in North Texas.

Math is a part of life and we use it everyday; the Math Department is working to make it enjoyable and worthwhile.

The band and orchestra has combined to form a small full orchestra. The band also marches to support the Bearcats and perform concerts in the winter and spring.

In harmony with the whole idea of music, the choirs work to perfect choral techniques. They perform several concerts throughout the year and provide entertainment for assemblies.

Physical Education, Health, and Driver's Education are required classes for graduation at Sherman High. Eight quarter units of PE and Health and one quarter of Driver's Ed are offered to round off the education of the student.

PE classes work to perfect physical fitness. Organized sports and games and participation in the Governor's Fitness Award are encouraged.

Health teaches body functions, drug and alcohol education, and hygiene.

Publications

The Publications department is one of the busiest departments at SHS. Before taking Journalism II, a student must first study Journalism I and learn basic skills in the mass media. Then a student is qualified to be chosen as a member of staff, which is to some extent rewarding.

Although staff members completed designs and stories for the ATHENIAN, they had to spend endless hours after school and took a great deal of pressure at deadline time.

This year the staff, along with advisor Paula Morgan, held contests and gave prizes as part of their campaign to put out a 408 page yearbook.

In the beginning someone said "ugh" and someone else wrote it down. From this came history. Well, it's not quite that simple but the study of people, their habits, and environment is interesting at SHS.

Three years of social studies are required for graduation: American History, World History or Geography, and American Government. European and Asian Studies are also offered. These classes cover a time span from pre- to current history.

If there are any more utterances of "ugh" it might be from a dislike of social studies, but not likely.

Vocational

Preparing for the future is the main objective of the Vocational department. Building Trades, Machine Shop Welding, Cosmetology, Production Agriculture, Drafting, Auto Mechanics, Distributive Education, Radio TV technology, Vocational Office Education, Pre Employment Lab and Home Economics are the on-campus training classes.

On-the-job training is experienced through Marketing and Distributive Education, Health occupations, Homemaking Co-op, Industrial Cooperative Training and Vocational office Education. Each of these programs give students career experience during High School. All of these classes have affiliated club organizations providing students the opportunity to compete in contests throughout the year at area and state levels.

Cheerleaders Enthusiasm Intensifies Pep Rallies

"We Back The Bearcats" was often heard in the stands as the cheerleaders encouraged the student body which encouraged the teams at SHS to many victories. The cheerleaders have a lot of work that many don't even know about, like decorating the gym for the pep rallies, making signs for the commons, painting and putting up the break-throughs, and locker signs for the athletes. They attended the SMU workshop in Dallas where they learned many new cheers and stunts. These are some of the many things a cheerleader goes through in just one year. The Varsity Cheerleaders of '80-'81 were: Sharon Baldermann, Lori Beane, Lori Bednarz, Machele Ellis, Debbie Fleming, Kristi Hase, Kim Plyler, Anne Wertz and sponsor Mrs. Bobbie Gohlke.

Tracksters endure strenuous schedule

Running many miles a week, increasing speed, pulling muscles, and sweaty t-shirts are all part of running track.

This group of hard-working boys put in many hours of practice a week in order to build and strengthen their bodies for upcoming competitions.

Track coaches for 80-81 were Ed Hunt and Bill O'Brien. They helped the boys train for many strenuous events throughout the year. They also filled the boys with encouraging words and made them feel like somebody special, because they were.

Improved efforts by soccer team

Sherman High's soccer team gained one more year of experience. Although the team was not as successful as was hoped, the team worked and made improvements.

This fast moving-unpredictable game is rapidly becoming a popular team sport. Even though the action was constant and often taxing on the sportsmen it did not draw adequate attention from the student body.

Soccer, which emphasizes speed, skill and endurance rather than muscle, requires dedication.

Both Varsity and JV were under the coaching of Don Longo.

Dyer produces quality team

Under the coaching and guidance of Mr. Mack Dyer, this year's varsity tennis team is one of the best in the district. This is due to the quantity and quality of the team's experienced players and coach.

The team returned this year to continue on its past accomplishments. Both lettermen and new members contributed their time and energy to give Sherman High a good reputation when it comes to tennis.

Not only is this year's team here this year but many of the players will be returning next year. These returnees will be the foundation of my fine teams to come in future years.

Fall

Fall is beautiful every years, bright colors every where different colored leaves all about

Birds singing rhythm all around,
The sunset sparkling through the trees,
On the other side of nowhere that nobody see
Then day breaks to darkness,
When all the lights go out.
The half-shaped moon standing still,
looking down, stars glistening here and there.
Crickets sounding everywhere. Morning come it's another day, sun shining it's time to play, people riding night seeing at all the beautiful trees it's fall everybody can't you see.

He Has Something

He has something going, this wonderful guy,
It's hard to explain, but I will certainly try.
He is gentle, he is kind, he was truly hard to find.

He is loving, understanding, and sweet thoughts he's always handing.

He's concerned and always caring and
God's word he's always sharing.

He's a Christian, he is strong, and he tries to keep from wrong.

He is patient, he is sweet, he will someday join God's fleet.

He is tall and he is cute, and his favorite cuss word's "shoot."

He's my friend and yours I bet,
He's a guy I'm glad I met!

He has something going, this wonderful guy,
It's hard to explain, but now you know why.

Miracles?

If I could change you in any, it would be to make you see that I really mean what I say. When I wrote that I cared, it was honest and sincere. When I wrote that you were special, it wasn't a put-on, I meant what I said. So why do you take what I say and use it against your judgment of me? Why do you frown upon my very existence? Could it be that maybe I saw only the outside of you and not all that you kept within? I can only hope that you someday realize that I was waiting for a miracle when I saw you. And what about today? Well, I don't say that I believe in miracles anymore!

— Alice Weightman

One Last Look

The trunk is all packed and Dad is honking the horn as I take one last look around my bedroom. It all seemed to pass so fast!

The closet is empty except for a few winter things, my seventh grade galoshes and my old Camp Fire ceremonial gown.

Upon the shelf a dusty storehouse of Milton Bradley and Parker Brothers games remind me of endless rainy days and toasty nights by the fire with my family and friends. I never dreamed such precious memories were hanging there where all my clothes used to be.

Out in my bedroom the bed is made, not to be messed up again for a long time. On top of the faded yellow spread are all the stuffed friends that stuck with me no matter what. They're lined up in neat rows and as if they are only cloth, buttons, yarn and stuffing. But I know they hold and will always keep tears of joy, the intimate conversations and especially the private "just between us" kind of secrets.

Teddy, my bear, he was there when I was born, he must have been fat and stiff. But after I dragged him up and down the grocery store aisles, in and out of nursery schools, and to and from overnight stays at Grandma's, he became comfortable and soft. Teddy was always with me, true to the end.

Glancing at my desk I remember evenings spent learning my alphabet to long nights organizing research papers. I smile at the stack of spiral notebooks full of useless class notes that I just could not bear to throw away. Then my bookshelves, stripped of the few reference books I own and the even fewer re-readable books that I've acquired while in school. There isn't much left, the Nancy Drew's that are being passed on to my cousin, and the poetry collections and Fairy tales books that probably won't be touched until I come back for them. There won't be time for fairy tales where I'm going.

Things in my room look a little blurry through my eyes, I turn out the light, whisper a prayer and promise not to look back. I walk down the hall to peak into Mama's and Daddy's room. It used to seem so big. How I used to take flying leaps into that bed on Sunday mornings when Dad would read the funnies. I think it was in here that I received my first real mother-daughter talk. It was funny how I already knew everything she was trying to say.

I turn and head for the staircase, still trying to remember each tender memory I am leaving behind. When I reach the front door, the car horn honks and sends me reeling back up the stairs to my room. Without turning on the light I know just where he stays, waiting for me. I grab him, we slide down the banister and run out the front door to the luggage laden car where I hop into the back seat. Mother turns and looks at us and with misty eyes, the smile tells me I don't have to explain. Teddy and I are off to college.

Thoughts

They say life is short, and do everything
there is to do.

Try this, try that, and to some extent they're right.

But I'm happy with the way I live my ambitions aren't in plight.

Just to live a happy life, and to love God and my mate.

I'm not too concerned about my destiny,
God will decide my fate.

God Grant Me . . .

God Grant me the time
To live each day right
Full of understanding
To be safe throughout the night

God grant me the knowledge
To know the man to love
Cherish, honor, and obey
to be a snow white dove.

God grant me the understanding
To be the best that I can be.
No reason to be scared or afraid,
but to know you are here with me.

God give me these three as you can plainly see.

Time to see tomorrow,
knowledge to be in love,
understanding to know he is with me.

with me and waiting up above
He loves me and you.

Dreams

Sometimes my heart is careful of
The things it sees or hears;
Like my smile is pretending that
It just can't feel my tears
And then, to fill the spaces that

Are left between the lines,
I daydream, and my basic Insecurity resigns.
I guess I spend my life in dreams
Of clear romantic skies
And overlook the stormclouds, where
The honest symbol lies,
Or ships on balmy oceans and
I'm with you for the ride;
I overlook we can't escape
Some pressures, like the tide.
I dreamed your heart would never drift
To any other place.
It's funny, how a tear just ruined
The smile that crossed my face

When I saw you and took for granted
Everything, it seems;
I sped things up between us, but
That just was in my dreams.
We maybe didn't take the time
To really look and see
The little parts of you that hurt
Like little parts of me,
And maybe just expect the rain
And know it wouldn't last,
But hindsight only brings regret;
We can't relive the past.
I guess I never dreamed that you
Would have to plan to be
A passenger on my fair ship
"Escape Reality."

Aftermath of Occurrence

I sat in the meadow wondering . . . for I had no occupancy elsewhere. My thought wasn't of earthly value, but a time of sufferage from whence I had never dealt with. In my thoughts I glanced through time, to my youth when my family lived on the corner house of a small town.

Now I remember . . . oh so well how that child, who lived adjacent to me, loved to watch the rough play from which I remained subdued. He always asked, "You can't run, you've got braces on your legs, remember?"

Then the other kids mocked with, "you dumb cripple, you can't run to first base with those legs!" He just sat there, soaking up the criticism . . . not even defending his kind.

It was that devilish word "Pride" that held me back from his friendship that I'd longed to find. Yet, I sit here in my own world, thinking of the pain that drenched that poor child's face. Yes, again I'm wrong, for he wasn't poor at all. That child, that heaven-sent angel had a heart as rich as milk chocolate and as pure as gold. What's more, he had faith, the one word for which no one else knew the meaning as he did.

Still here, my soul is lost in a timeless dream . . . wishing that I had the God-given strength to reach out and to touch the hearts of so many other victims, like himself, just to say "Rise up and walk, run, take my hand and learn to live as nature has intended." It just isn't possible . . . someone else has beat me to the job.

Now it's over. Walking through the village of corpses while the wind sings a neverending dirge without accompaniment, I placed a crucifix on his tomb reminding others that he, too, was mocked for who and what he was. Now he's found his reward.

I'll lay you two-to-one that he's up there playing baseball right now.

LOVE

Love wasn't put in our heart to stay,
Love isn't love till you give it away.
Love isn't a simple word,
Love is something you probably never heard.
Love is big like the great out doors,
Love has no walls, ceiling or floors.
Love is wild yet tame,
Love is the very same.
Love is what you say, feel, and hear,
Love is always very never.

Football games full of tears
popcorn, hot dogs, coke and cheers

Speculation

Some things I just take with a grain
Of salt until
We meet again.
Some parts of conversations hide
The signs of their intent:
I don't know if you're kidding, or
You don't know what I meant.
Some parts of hopes and parts of dreams
May be the same
For us, it seems
We think alike,
Or share some goals,
And who knows what
The future holds?
So sometime, maybe

He will find
A conversation
Of the kind
Relieving doubts
And making clear
Exactly what
We're doing here.
For now, for all
The words have said,
It's jumbled up
Inside my head.
I know if something
Come of late,
I'm just content
To speculate.

My Love

Summers gone, it will come again greeting me like a new found friend.
The air now cold, and stings like ice, as winter strengthens its mighty vice. But I stay warm with the thought of her,
I love her so of this I'm sure. Summers gone and winters come, but she's my warmth, yes she's my sun.

Each time the grass grows
or, when the sun shines,
I'm thinking of her.
My Love all the time.

Her eyes always sparkle
and ever they shine,
Her life is so precious
Eternally kind.

I've noticed her smile.
I've remembered her face.
Often I praise God,
for showing his grace.

His grace I can see inside your sweet smile.

you make life so gentle and always worthwhile.

It's time that you knew,
my love is for you,
and not in some dream.
It stands straight and true.

Only for you
I say once again to you whom I love most dearest kind friend.

All beauty in you
is all that you are.
you're one I have cherished,
adored from afar.

love still stays the same,
I do ask myself
will it always be rain?

Somehow, the school building just wouldn't be complete without principals roaming the halls.

The principals of Sherman High have had an extremely busy and exciting school year. These devoted and hardworking people, led by Dr. Tony Fillman, help to supervise students and manage many important school affairs. Assisting Dr. Fillman with this time consuming job are assistant principals Mr. Charles Byler, Mrs. Nan Jones, and Mr. Bill McClure.

If these four outstanding people aren't doing something like opening jammed lockers, having parent-student conferences, observing classrooms, taking someone to class, waiting outside for buses, or patrolling the parking lot, they probably aren't at school.

Faculty captures student interest

Although some students fail to appreciate the dedication and preparation of faculty members, each presented a variety of methods and experiences for their particular class.

Helping students function efficiently and making them aware of their own world as well as the outside world was just one of the many functions of each teacher at SHS.

Solving problems, giving guidance, or just giving a pat on the back, let the student understand that teachers were "real life" human beings.

Involvement was a key word at SHS, and most faculty members became caught up and enthusiastic in a variety of student activities.

Secretaries prove loyalty

Due to the loyalty of SHS secretaries, the offices were organized and people knew where they were going.

Dr. Tony Fillman was assisted by Mrs. Pat Caldwell while the ninth and tenth grade principals were given assistance by Mrs. Frances Johnson. Mrs. Beth Cenero took care of attendance in the front office and Mrs. Kay Harris helped the counselors and the school nurse in the back office. Mrs. Rosalee Beck, the school's receptionist took messages and helped keep the front running properly and smoothly.

Counselors help make decisions

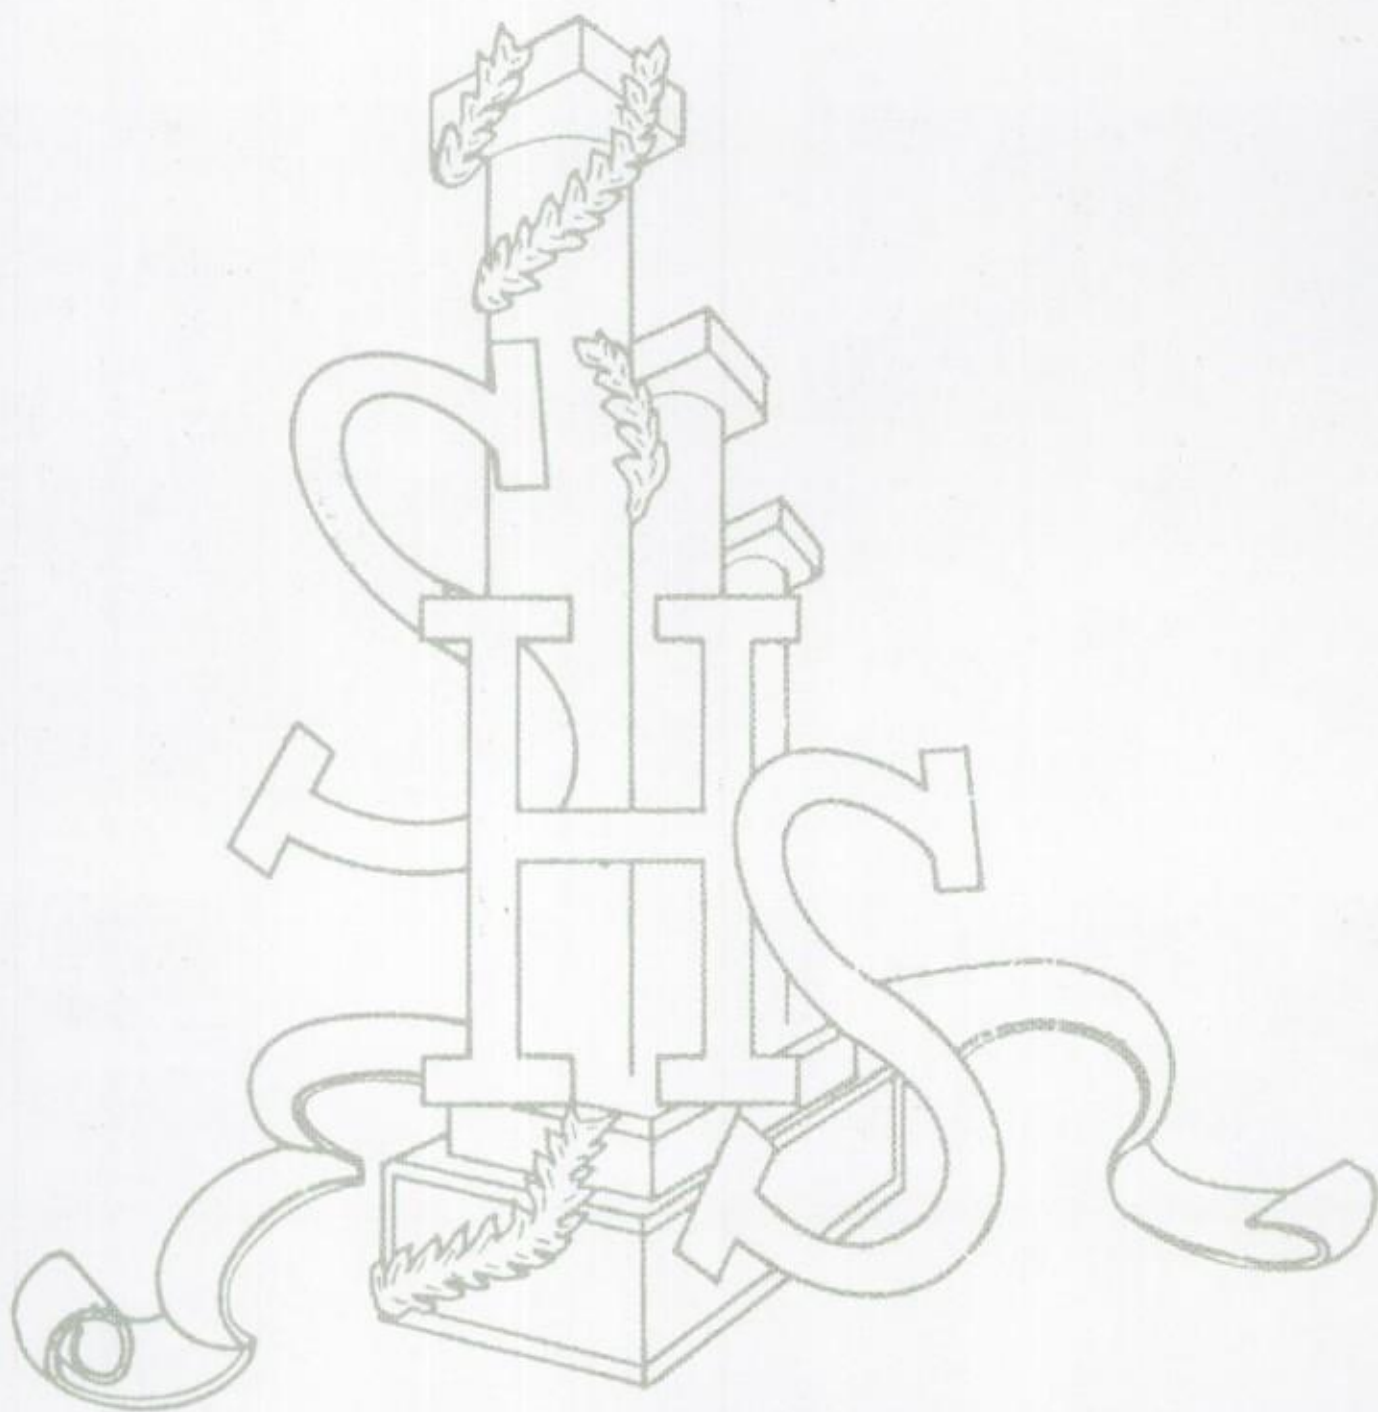

This year's organizers and listening ears were Mr. Jack Anderson, vocational counselor; Mrs. Dorthell McKinney, senior counselor; Mrs. Evelyn Low, junior counselor; Mr. Larry Scott and Mrs. Phyllis Armstrong, sophomore counselors; and Miss Louise Linton and Mrs. Dorothy Perkins, freshmen counselors.

These seven hardworking and patient people got students organized, straightened out, and got them where they should be. They work with newcomers, schedules, withdrawals, and they helped students determine what they wanted to do in the future.

They were here to help students straighten out both personal and classroom problems.

1. Mr. Jack Anderson explains the importance of a good education to Ishea Lindon. 2. Mack Snider gets help from Mrs. Evelyn Low in planning his second semester schedule. 3. Princeton Williams talks to Mrs. Phyllis Armstrong about his future plans. 4. Mr. Larry Scott shows Sharon Allison her transcript. 5. Miss Louise Linton and David Brown talk about various occupations. 6. Mrs. Dorothy Perkins is caught filing student's schedule cards. 7. 3

In the spirit of tradition the 1981 Seniors showed Bearcat pride during the annual Senior Pep Rally.

This year's seniors had a new twist in accessories. The straw hats presented a challenge for each senior to show his individuality and creativity. The results proved that "The greatest class at SHS has made it all the way!"

SAVING TIPS on Electric Conditioning

Central Systems

1. Set thermostat on 78°, or higher.
2. Have equipment checked seasonally by a qualified serviceman.
3. Check filter every 30 days. Clean or replace when dirty.
4. Close draperies and blinds to keep out direct sunlight.
5. Keep fireplace damper closed.
6. Proper home insulation keeps heat out, cuts energy use.
7. Weatherstrip doors and windows. Caulk cracks.

Window Units

Follow Above Suggestions, Plus These:

8. Place unit where it'll get as little direct sun as possible.
9. Aim air outlets at lower half of doorway to next room to allow warm air from that room to enter at the doortop for recooling, recirculation.

If you would like additional information on conserving electricity, call the CSP in the TP&L Office.

LOF is what we make it.

Don't just think of Libbey-Owens-Ford as a giant Corporation. Think of it as us. We're the thousands of men and women who work here every day.

Our LOF paychecks are more than just pieces of paper. They're our groceries, our house payments, our children's educations. They're the hopes we hope and the dreams we plan. What we get for jobs well done.

You pull up next to us in rush-hour traffic. We're in line together at the supermarket and the bank. We're people like you. With one difference: We have a big part in the products LOF makes.

When we say we work at LOF, we mean we do more than put in time here. We spend a third of our lives here. We've made friends and built lives here. We count on our employer for help with health expense protection, retirement and meeting the rising cost of living. And we get that help.

No wonder we never miss a chance to do our jobs better. No wonder we're always looking forward to ways to improve our products.

LOF helps make our lives what they are. We make LOF what it is. And we plan to make it even better.

This was SHS, your school. Inside, the climb began with discoveries that helped teach you more about what life is like.

Starting out, the journey seemed long and hard. Freshmen realized this as they were introduced to locker slamming, rush hour traffic in the halls and lunch room, waiting lines in the restrooms, and teachers gazing over your shoulder to see whether you had learned half of what they tried to teach you.

370 — Closing

Lucky was the upper-classman, or so thought the majority of the sophomores. The thought of having a car, a job, more freedom, etc., was enough to stir up envy. Before any freedom could be obtained, responsibility had to be shown. Sophomores spent their year growing, enjoying their fun and pranks for one more year without being classified as an adult.

Mark Lowery practices tumbling in PE. 3. Cheryl Wible, Mike Kendall, Diana Polk, John Lowry, Vanna Braden, Vince Pierce, and Rex Grigg perform during a pep rally. 4. Brenda Hightower stands at attention during a half-time performance. 5. Brent Wingfield poses for the camera.

The Juniors were the mischief makers of the school. They kept other classmen in suspense by pulling wild stunts, thus enjoying their last year of goofing off before taking the big step to becoming . . . a Senior. Leadership was in their hands as they reached the end of their high school days. College and home life matters stared them in the face. Each individual chose his own path and tried to make the best of what knowledge he had acquired.

The Staff Would Like To Thank:

The Staff leaves this book to the student body in hopes that at some time, some place, a memory or a familiar face will bring back a reminder of the good times at SHS.

Ed McMeans and the crew at Taylor Publishing Co. for being understanding and bearing with us . . .

The faculty at SHS for signing notes to let staff members out of class to work on the yearbook, and for proofing and reproofing quad-paks . . .

The students and club sponsors for having group pictures made over and over again . . .

The parents of staff members for allowing us to stay up all hours of the night, and for being there to pat us on the back when things seemed hopeless . . .

Mrs. Paula (Mom) Morgan for laughing and crying us through the pains that this book has caused, but most of all for being there when we needed her!

The Staff leaves this book to the student body in hopes that at some time, some place, a memory or a familiar face will bring back a reminder of the good times at SHS.
